

To whom this may concern:

I am sending this email in regards to the National Institute of Environmental Health Sciences proposition of in-vitro cell cultures as replacement to lethal animal tests. I believe this will be a crucial step forward towards ending animal reasearch altogether. I hope that this email and the many other letters, phone calls, and emails that follow from other animal rights' advocates indicate the need and desire for such in-vitro cell culture research. Thank you for your time.

Sincerely,
Shannon Gongoleski
